PROTECTION.

Bless'd is the man who daily tries
To better his condition,
And does his best to keep his trade
From foreign competition;
Be it in iron, brass or tin
It should not be neglected,
As home industry is a thing
Which ought to be protected.

Can it be right to patronize
A Nation that engages
To undersell another land
By paying pauper wages?
And it will come to that at home
If there is no objection
Against it by the workman
Assisting for Protection.
Protect your home and freeds,
Protect a friendly neighbor,
But, above all, protect yourself,
Your country and its labor,
Or you will find when it's too late,
By sad and sore reflection,
That you have made a grand mistake
By giving up Protection.

UNITED AND AGGRESSIVE

Is the Fleming County Republican Party—The Outlook Promising.

The Republican party in Fleming county is united and enthusiastic and will make an aggressive campaign this fall. They have a full county ticket in the field, composed of men who represent the best elements of the party.

There are no internal dissensions and quarrels and it is the intention to carry the county in every race from the National ticket down. James M. Wallingford for County Judge, Joseph Collier for Sheriff and Harry Andrews for Circuit Clerk are all good and worthy men and make an admirable ticket.

Fleming will also show her appreciation of the honor conferred on her in nominating her gifted son, John P. McCartney, for Congress. Judge Holt is extremely popular in the county and his candidacy adds much to the party strength. A. M. J. Cochran is the unanimous choice as the candidate for Circuit Judge.

While the Republicans present this bold and united front the Democrats are torn assunder by party rivalries and jealousies.

Their candidate for County Judge, was until quite recently, a citizen of Indiana, and the Democracy with its accustomed inconsistency is trying to practice "carpet bagging" on the good people.

The Democratic nominee for Circuit Clerk is the nominee of a faction rather than the party's candidate.

Altogether the outlook is most promising for Republicans in that county.

SWEET SADIE SCANLAN is coming soon.

TUESDAY October 4th is Registration Day, and it will be the only day that citizens of Maysville can register unless the City Council designates Saturday the 8th as an additional day. If you do not register you cannot vote.

A MATRIMONIAL STORM.

The Woes and Tribulations of a Newly Married Couple.

Early last winter Mr. and Mrs. James Young, living near Ripley, and who had been married for twenty years, agreed to disagree, or rather Mrs. Young decided to leave her husband, claiming that she and her children were not provided for, they being compelled to live without fuel, clothes or anything to satisfy their hunger, while the husband spent his money for different brands to quench his thirst. Consequently Mrs. Young, realizing that she was no longer the loved and honored queen of a happy home, went to Lexington, this state, where she secured employment in a restaurant. She was pursued by her husband, who endeavored to persuade her to return to Ohio with him, making numerous promises to lead a more devoted life. But golden memories of unsullied devotion which had once lingered in her heart's altar could not be rekindled and the broken-hearted husband returned without his alienated wife.

She was soon joined at Lexington, however, by a young man named Gil Johns, who had made her Ohio home his place of abode, and the two went to Cincinnati where, it is said, they lived as husband and wife.

James learned of her whereabouts and upon going to Cincinnati pursued her to rejoin him, and they went to house-keeping in Covington. The sea of matrimonial storms was once more calm and the reunited couple sailed on serene waters up to last Saturday when Mrs. Young caused the arrest of her husband, charging that he had been drunk and had ill-treated her.

At the trial it was developed that Johns had been living at the Young home and he was still smitten with Mrs. Young's charms, and paid his attentions in such a way as to rouse all the angry passions in Mr. Young's breast. He demanded that Johns leave the house, and he did stay away for a few days and then went back, and matters got worse than ever. It was this that caused Young to drown his sorrows in drink and get his gun after the destroyer of his peace. Judge Athey advised him to stand no further imposition, but get away from such a crowd. He dismissed Young, and he will go back to his home at Ripley. Mrs. Young claims he has treated her meanly, and that was what caused her partiality for "Gil."

CUPID'S CAPERS.

Another Light-hearted Couple Set Sail Together on Life's Heaving Billows.

It has been said and truly said that "God's greatest gift is love."

How the heart thrills with tender and anxious emotions as the divine passion sweeps aside all barriers, until she, whom he has singled out among the daughters of men as the pearl of womanhood, smiles back her assent, and in whispers low breathes into his listening ear the sweet avowal that he is the bright particular star in her heaven, and that without him life would be a dreary waste. Loving vows are pledged, and the path of true love spread out into the misty future.

The devoted couple are supremely happy for a time in the enjoyment of the exhilarating sweets of another's society, but as the silken thread of love binds their hearts more closely together, they begin to long for the time when together they shall launch their flower-decked arcos on life's heaving billows, and steer boldly out into the unknown. They look forward to this time with pleasure, because it promises a realization of all there is in life worth living for. So it has been since God in his wisdom placed in the Garden of Eden along with his best creation, a peerless and devoted companion, and so it will be until the end of time, because it is the perfect work of the great Creator.

But to the case in point. To-day, Wednesday, September 28th, 1892, at 2 o'clock, love's fond dream culminated in one of those pleasant affairs so aptly characterized "a poem in real life"—a marriage. It was the celebration of the nuptials of Edwin McDonald and Miss Ida Colcord Brooke, two of our best known and most popular young people. The interesting event occurred at Springdale Christian Church and was witnessed by several hundred invited guests. The beautiful marriage ceremony was pronounced in a most impressive manner by Elder C. S. Lucas of this city after which the newly married couple received the congratulations of all present. At 4 o'clock they will take the F. F. V. for Cincinnati and the next day start on an extended visit through the West.

The groom is one of the most thrifty farmers of this community; is a close observer, and a clever whole souled gentleman in every sense.

The bride is one of those plucky, energetic and gritty young ladies that you will not find in every household. She is one of our most intelligent and accomplished young ladies and our good friend, McDonald, is to be doubly congratulated on this winning one so worthy of his best love.

The presents, which are numerous and costly, may be seen at the parlor of Elder T. P. Degman whose wife is an elder sister of the bride.

And now to the good wishes already tendered their correspondent wishes to add his most hearty congratulations. May both "live long and prosper." May they meet much of sunshine and escape the lowering clouds of real life. May perennial flowers and grateful shades combine and make for them a life replete with happiness and pleasure, and may they always look back to this day of 1892 as the beginning of the happiest epoch of their lives.

The bride was dressed in a beautiful fawn silk with low corsage and demitrain. In her hand she held a magnificent bouquet of Marcehal Neil roses.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and the event is pronounced the leading one of the season.

He is a Republican, and sees victory in Kansas this November.

WILLIAM HOCKENHAMER, indicted for the murder of Grant Phillips near Clay City December 12th, 1891, at a dance, was tried in the Powell Circuit Court and found guilty of involuntary manslaughter, and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. A. B. GREENWOOD, who is touring through the Queen's dominions, has THE LEDGER's thanks for late Toronto and Montreal papers.

A GLAD incident of the trip to the Grand Encampment of the G. A. R. for John Walsh was the meeting of his brother, William Walsh of Bridgeport Conn., whom he had not seen since the close of the war. John knew that his brother was there but to what Post he belonged he had no idea and to find him in that vast crowd seemed impossible. However he watched as the Connecticut veterans marched by in the parade and to his great joy he spied him in the line. Pushing aside the police he ran out and threw his arms around him. It was a touching scene and the brothers were loudly cheered.

In Time of Peace Prepare for War.

Have you ever thought what you would do in case you, or some one of your family, was taken with a severe attack of colic, cholera morbus, dysentery or diarrhoea. In such cases it is not unusual for fatal results to follow before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned.

There is nothing that will give permanent relief so quickly as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It never fails even in the most severe cases either for children or adults. Why not keep it at hand? 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

Death of E. S. Fletcher.

E. S. Fletcher, a resident of this city in his youth and well known in this county in former years, died this morning at 7 o'clock at the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Lottie Wood, on West Second street.

He was about 65 years of age and had been an invalid for some time.

He was a lawyer by profession, having studied when a young man in the office of Hon. W. H. Wadsworth in this city. He first practiced in Ashland and moved from there to Galveston, Tex., where he spent most of his life.

His wife, who was Miss Ann C. Wood, survives him, and one daughter, Mrs. Warren Gilbert, of Waco, Tex.

Funeral arrangements not yet learned.

Sadie Scanlan.

Last night the Grand Opera-house was literally packed with an appreciative and enthusiastic audience, says The New Orleans Picayune, who gave Miss Sadie Scanlan a rousing reception on the occasion of her debut in this city as a star in an Irish comedy drama entitled, "Nora Macrae."

The appellation "sweet" has been justly applied to the pretty and vivacious little lady. Aside from being possessed of a pretty face and a finely moulded figure, there is a charm of expression, and the presence of an unaffected demeanor that attracts the audience from the moment she enters on the stage until the finale.

Her singing is very sweet and full, rich and of a kind that never fails to charm the hearer. Her rendition of Moore's beautiful melody, "The Harp that Once Thro' Tara's Halls," was sung particularly well and received merited encores.

As a comedienne, she evidenced talents of a high order. In the title role, she was the ideal Irish lassie, honest, loving and witty, with a sparkle and vim that made the character the more acceptable to the auditors.

ALL FORGERIES.

Not One Genuine Declares John Huntington's Affidavits

In Reference to Several Notes Bearing His Signature.

He Fastens the Crime Upon Ex-Congressman Paige, and Even Hints That Paige's Wife is Implicated—Face of Notes Aggregate Over $400,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—H. C. Ranney, a lawyer of Cleveland, came through New York from Carlsbad recently with affidavits from John Huntington denying that a vast number of signatures, supposed to be his indorsement of notes given by Ex-Congressman D. R. Paige, formerly of Ohio, the New York aqueduct contractor, were genuine. The face of the notes aggregate over $400,000. Some of the signatures are in a woman's handwriting, and a Cleveland banker who discounted them claimed that they were signed by Mrs. Huntington while her husband was too ill in bed to make his own signature. Mrs. Huntington has sent over an affidavit that she never signed any note with his name. H. C. Hord, the son-in-law of Mrs. Huntington, came back from Carlsbad several days ago with the same information.

Paige fled from New York to London when his alleged forgeries were discovered, and sent a telegram to Huntington, at Carlsbad, asking to be allowed to see the capitalist there. He received a reply that Huntington would not see him. The men married sisters, but Huntington was obdurate. The last the Huntingtons heard of Paige he was in Brazil, with plenty of money. He was next reported at Buenos Ayres. There is no longer any doubt here or in Ohio that there has been a vast amount of forgery in this case, but there is also a mystery surrounding it which can only be solved when Mr. Huntington returns. He is said to have so fully recovered his health that he will come over in November or December. He has some scores from being in bed for two or three years, which are being healed, but is said otherwise to be well.

There is considerable gossip here about the notes that are indorsed in a feminine hand, since Mrs. Huntington has sworn that she did not sign them for her husband, and one story is that the Huntingtons have been trying to cast suspicion on Mrs. D. R. Paige as the woman who put on the signatures.

Why Cholera Declines Hamburg.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Times' special correspondent in Hamburg, in describing the sewage and water systems of the city, says: "The cisterns are choked with solid matter. In fact, the chain of pollution grows with every link. The water in the river is cleaner than that in the water-works; there is cleaner water in the water-works than in the mains, and that in the mains is cleaner than that in the houses. Only one thing was wanted. It was to provide an entrance of cholera poison into the water system. This was arranged. The intake is so situated that at flood tide matter from the sewage outfalls can reach it."
